

SYSTEM FREEZE DESK GUIDE

Member-facing communication during technical friction

When the system pauses, slow the conversation down.

Use these interpersonal prompts while following all official United Teletech Credit Union operational, security, escalation, and compliance procedures.

1 ACKNOWLEDGE

Name the impact without blaming the member, a teammate, or the technology.

TRY SAYING

"I can see this delay is frustrating. Thank you for your patience while I check the next step."

2 CLARIFY

Share only what is known and appropriate. Avoid guessing, overpromising, or exposing internal details.

TRY SAYING

"I want to make sure this is handled accurately. Let me verify the approved process."

3 CONNECT

Explain the immediate next action and use the credit union's official fallback or escalation channel.

TRY SAYING

"Here is what I can do now, and when you can expect the next update."

A 10-second circuit breaker

"Is what I'm doing helping or harming this interaction?"

HELPFUL SIGNALS

- Calm pace and plain language
- Accurate expectations
- Active listening and validation
- Clear handoff through approved channels

PAUSE BEFORE

- Speculating about causes
- Promising an exact resolution time
- Sharing internal or sensitive details
- Inventing a workaround

CONTROL • INFLUENCE • ACCEPT

Own your tone and next action. Shape the handoff. Release what is outside your authority.

IMPORTANT: This guide offers general interpersonal de-escalation and communication strategies. It does not replace or override United Teletech Credit Union operational, security, transaction, escalation, or compliance policies. Always follow official internal procedures.
